A major cinema chain was fined £750,000 for breaching health and safety legislation at its Star City theatre in Neshells which led to a cinema-goer's death, at Birmingham Crown Court today (20 July). Safety checks failed to identify that the footrests on these powered seats from the Lowry cinema could not be raised manually and if they had been, those seats with double acting actuators should not have been installed in the Star City's Gold Screen cinemas. You may place a link to this page on your website provided you do not hide it within a frame or window. Famously, Harold "Doc" Edgerton, an engineer, inventor and professor at MIT, used a combination of strobe lights and high-speed cameras to capture images normally too fleeting for us to see. In 2013 another Vue cinema at the Lowry, in Manchester, was being refurbished and the powered reclining seats were sent to Star City, where they were placed into an unused screen. People go to the cinema to enjoy films with friends and family, no-one should have to consider whether their safety is at risk while watching a film. Whether you like it or not, you can't always believe your eyes. If you find yourself writing more than a half-dozen strobe cues into a two-hour show, take another look and see if there isn't some other way to create the look you're after. You've probably seen his photographs of water droplets and bullets smashing apples, or similar pictures inspired by his work, in books on science as well as photography journals. Of course, the entertainment industry was quick to adopt the strobe light for its own purposes. It was also ordered to pay court costs of £130,000 and £170 victim surcharge at today's sentencing. This has proved valuable in studying all sorts of fast-moving phenomena. This discovery is considered by many to be the birth of the cinema. The strobe light was developed as a way to combat the stroboscopic effect. To get the best effect from a strobe light, however, it is important to follow some basic guidelines. Note that strobe light works by limiting what our eyes can perceive and therefore works best in a very dark space. If there is enough light to see the performers when the strobe light is between flashes, the effect will be ruined. This tragic incident should never have happened, and my thoughts remain with his wife and family. Michael Faraday, the British physicist, was very interested in this effect, building devices to study it. If an image changes rapidly, say more than 24 times per second, our brains simply "mixed" all the images into one flat image. No one likes to have bright lights in their eyes, and your audience will quickly lose patience with you if they feel they are lasting too long. Finally, you should be sure to post signals advising your audience that they are being used in their performance. action.
